Summer Washington knew that her boss was taking advantage of her when he demanded that she meet him at the Radisson Hotel for a Valentine's Ball. He claimed that perhaps they could smooze some elite clients and steer them towards contracting with their company.

Peter Cook thought that being at the Radisson would be a waste of time but then he saw Summer and it was love at first sight. He ignored his two friends and headed toward her, hoping to convince her of his sincerity because one way or another she was going to be his!

Dana Littlejohn creates the perfect Valentine theme short story that was not too hot nor too cold but a wonderful blend of excitement mixed with hot sex and the type of happy-ever-after that only exists in our fantasies. Readers will love Ms. Littlejohn's sense of humor and her passion for the naughty. Lover's Brew definitely kept me warm!
